BACKGROUND

The Devore Warship is the primary capital ship of the authoritarian Devore Imperium. Although the Imperium's territory is relatively small, their warships more than ensure that what territory the Imperium does possess remains in their possession. The warship itself has standard armament, though a considerable amount of said armament. What makes this vessel stand out is its use of refractive shielding, which at sensor ranges makes the warship difficult to detect. The warship also features redundant systems for its weapons and shields, making the vessel difficult to disable in combat. The Imperium's standard practice is for these ships to operate in pairs, thus ensuring very few single ships would survive any hostilities initiated.
